CARMEL CLOSEUP: Ansel Adams

'We must preserve everything of beauty'

By JUDITH A. EISNER

Ansel Adams has devoted 40 years of his life and all his creative energy to photography. Together with a handful of other dedicated photographers, he has been responsible for photography being accorded its rightful place, along with painting and sculpture, as a pure art form.

It is a fitting tribute that the name Ansel Adams is a household name in photography. As Picasso and Van Gogh, Beethoven and Tschaikovsky are recognized by most American families as greats in art and music, so is Adams' work appreciated by more people than any other photographer.

Today, at 68, Adams is as involved as ever in his art and works, as he puts it, "eight days a week." The dining room table in his magnificent Carmel Highlands home is littered with manuscript pages for his newest book, and the busy clacking of a typewriter sounds from another room.

HERE SINCE 1962

The Adams' have lived in Carmel since 1962 and now "commute" between here and Yosemite where they operate a Photographic Workshop which has achieved nationwide fame.

Despite the press of work and a continually busy schedule, Adams is a relaxed, cheerful man who is able to bring into his discussions of serious national problems an air of bemusement and imperturbability. Concerned though he is about conservation, ecology and environment, he seems to have passed the stage of vociferous, wrathful protest, and he now speaks as a realist rather than a zealot.

Adams has long been associated with the world of nature, both as a photographer and as an active Sierra Club member. Perhaps his awareness of nature and her powers is due to childhood impressions. Born in 1902 in San Francisco, Ansel remembers his childish delight at the great earthquake of 1906.

"I was only four years old and was having a ball. At 10:30 in the morning I was out in the garden and another shock came and knocked me down and broke my nose," he remembers, rubbing that nose. "I call it my 1906 nose, but it's the only one I have."

Apparently, from then on young Ansel and Mother Nature had something going that grew stronger through the years. Although he was trained as a pianist, it was a profession he never prac-

"SURF SEQUENCE NO. 5" -- By Ansel Adams

"No departure from Carmel tradition"

Plan for 50% increase in rentable space at Plaza

Carmel Plaza, the shopping complex on Ocean and Mission, will be substantially remodeled within the next two years. Ange Dennis, Carmel attorney and local representative for new Plaza-owner Douglas Glinden, told the Pine Cone this week, "We plan to develop the Carmel Plaza so that the occupiable commercial space will be greatly enlarged."

Currently a large percentage of the Plaza's total area is being used for off-street parking. Being considered, according to Dennis, is a method of keeping (or even enlarging) the parking area, while increasing rentable space by at least 50 per cent.

The only way to accomplish this is by vertical expansion. A level of shops either above or below the street level is being tentatively considered by Walter Burde, the Carmel architect who has been commissioned to prepare the eventual design of the renovation.

Burde said, however, that he is still awaiting a "go-ahead" order from the administrators of the Plaza to make studies and prepare designs for the structure. "It is too soon to offer specific plans for the project," he said.

Dennis also pointed out that ideas for the restructuring are still at the formative stage. And he gave assurances that "there will be no zoning violations or any departures from Carmel tradition and standards" in the anticipated addition to the Carmel Plaza.

The Plaza presently includes tenants such as I. Magnin, the Bank of America and Sambo's, and no changes in these occupants is expected.

ONE OF CARMEL'S white-haired little old ladies defiantly places flowers on memorial to Carmel's war dead on Ocean and Lincoln. For more on this, read the Mayor's Report on page 10.

GUILTY!

EDITOR'S NOTE: This exclusive article, by Tony Limber, was written for the Pine Cone after Tony was found guilty of being in the business district without a leash and fined $40. He was also put on a three year's probation. Tony's friend, Carmel sculptor Bob Limber was also on hand during the proceedings, but claims innocence.

Bow-wow-WOW!

Three years probation for an old Basset like me -- might as well be LIFE -- and $40 is a lot of biscuits. Now, don't get me wrong - I like humans as well as the next dog -- but with all their efforts (locked gates, doors and front yard tethers), I'll no doubt do it again. I'm not an "habitual offender," just an opportunist.

Most of us, humans too, like a change of scene periodically -- it's broadening -- and we're willing to pay for it. But why so severe? And why that big building off Aguajito? My people had a terrible time just parking their machine in order to accept the court-room invitation for me... then all those people who work there told us the invite didn't include me ... I don't dig it.

My thoughts on this, if anyone cares, are as follows: for a change-of-scene caper (in violation of City Code Section 630), why not list on the back of the invitation to come and pay something like this:

1st caper -- reprimand
2nd caper -- 5 biscuits
3rd caper -- 10 biscuits

Each succeeding caper -- 10 biscuits, until calendar year is over, then a clean slate!

These are still very serious amounts of biscuits and could cause more locks and gates. But my humans could settle up for me at that nice building in Carmel, where the nice man always drives me.

Both my people have gotten invitations for putting their cars where they shouldn't (much the same as my change-of-scene caper), and the back of the invite tells them what to pay and where.

Why a Federal (County) case for me?

Signed,
TONY LIMBER

THE FOURTH OF JULY

America's Independence Day in retrospect and in contemplation

Lt. Col. C. Austin De Camp, retired Army Engineer of the Reserves, made a patriotic resolve in 1917, when as a new company commander on his first active duty, he discovered the ignorance of his men in this country's history and the uniqueness of its conception.

Today he is 86 and his resolve -- to bring greater awareness to others -- is as strong as ever. He has written on many patriotic topics for the Pine Cone from the time of his arrival in Carmel in 1950, appropriately on George Washington's birthday.

by C. AUSTIN DE CAMP

Eighty years ago, the feverishly awaited 4th meant to my generation, parental permission to arise a couple of hours early, to open the day with the firing of a Giant Firecracker with many lesser ones to follow.

Somehow the day was dimly associated with some time past when we "licked the Redcoats." In any event we were quite consciously aware that we all loved our Country.

Seventy-two years ago our 4th of July opened as usual to the salute of the irresistable firecracker and accompanied by the nearly delirious jubilation over the previous day's destruction of the Spanish Fleet at Santiago. Exuberant joy in the imminent winning of another American-led war in the cause of freedom. A day of pride in Country.

Fifty-three years ago: Another day of pride in learning of our acceptance by the War Department for training in our Armed Forces that were to make the "World safe for Democracy" ... another mile stone in our Country's dedication to the cause of freedom.

Thirty-two years ago: Recovering from surgery in a Veterans Hospital in Milwaukee. Thus having time for contemplation and review, with a message to my regiment in Chicago, the 39th Engineers Reserve, as incumbent on me, its Commander.

At the time, Hitler was demonstrating that we had not made "the World safe for Democrary." WHY? Did any of us know why? I thought it out to the best of my ability and wrote the Regiment an answer which they seemingly accepted. Subsequent experience and observation have confirmed me that I was just about right then and that I am justified in passing it along to you on this 4th, July, 1970. In substance, here it is:

There are in essence just two directing philosophies in this world. The oldest, best known, most widely accepted is that: "MIGHT MAKES RIGHT". It needs no moral sanction, no ethical inquiry, no integrity, no religion, no compassion, no Deity.

It does need the spirit of aggression to insure its continuance and to give it sustaining endurance. Wherever it is dominant, aggression will be found insistant.

The one other philosophy, "RIGHT MAKES MIGHT", though possibly not dominant, does give direction to the Western or Christian world we Christians live in and strive for.

It's provenance stems from the Prophets of Israel and from the Seers of Greece. It is epitomized in the words of Jesus the Christ who held the Kindgon of God lay in the individual, and that the freedoms of such kingdom were the product of knowing truth.

Thus two "directional" philosophies, complete opposites of one another were at the time engaging in mortal combat (Hitler vs. Western World). Since such conflict had been existent in some measure since history began, this conflict now gave promise of engaging the whole world and might last indefinitely, quite certainly during my lifetime and probably theirs. It would, I said, "be theirs to keep the faith." As far as my knowledge goes, they one and all did just that, and with honour.

Hitler, world leader and practitioner of Might makes Right, died in ignominy, but his banner was immediately to be seized by one, Stalin who gave to his Soviets the compelling, undying determination to make the brutal philosophy, Might makes Right prevail thruout the world. To prepare the takeover he filled his people with an understanding that our American 4th July Declaration, that all men were created equal, and were endowed, not by the State, but "by their Creator" would stand in the way, so long as the American people sensed its Right makes Might meaning, and give their loyalty to it.

At this juncture, I think it should be amply manifest to all informed people that Soviet support of the bestial Viet Cong on the one hand, the financing and arming of the would-be destroyers of Israel for another, that Stalin's successors have every intention of pursuing their directional Might makes Right methods until America no longer stands in their way.

But why America? Ask yourself -- could freedom have any tenure, security or direction in a society operating on the thesis that Might makes Right? Obviously, any degree of freedom in such would have to be wholly nebulous and of no constructional value.

Again you may say: "The United States is not the only free country, why pick on us?

Well, looking backward, I think that you will agree that the United States of America is the only Country that was specifically designed and came into being to give structure to a government of free men. It was not an accident.

There were two factors in her birth unique in the annals of history and which definativly placed her as THE Nation of Leadership in the RIGHT MAKES MIGHT philosophy.

The first factor was the acknowledgement of the paramountcy of individual man as an endowment of God the Eternal and therefore not of Society, the ephemeral, thus providing for the freedom of man down a limitless future.

The second: the establishment of "consent" as the fundamental basis for the government of mankind.

These two principles of the government of mankind, new at the time, presaged a governmental structure that set the pace and pattern for subsequent attempts to create a government conforming to the RIGHT MAKES MIGHT philosophy.

Their acceptance by some fifty-five delegates to the American Continental Congress in 1776, each of whom knew full well that in signing the Declaration of Independance, he had laid himself open to hanging on a trators gallows, set the seal of honorable obligation on all subsequent Americans to honor, revere and support our Declaration with all the fervor that lies within our souls.

As men of honor and integrity, we must not let this critical 4th of July, 1970 go by without rereading, yes, pondering the spiritual implications of this wonderous document, and so rededicating ourselves in a reverential way to the cause of freedom, to the strengthening of the principle that Right makes Might, and to that undying love of our Country, first in history to make these principles work. Not forgetting the original signers of the Declaration. * Their fortunes were forfeit, their honor was not. No signer defected or changed his mind thruout the darkest hours. Our defenders have died and most have been forgotten. Men do die and are forgotten. What does matter is that the Country remember that freedom on the first or any 4th of July and especially this of 1970, comes high.

* Paraphrased from Fehrenbach's, "Greatness To Spare".

ticed. Instead, he became interested in photography as an adjunct to boyhood mountain camping trips, and by the time he was in his mid-twenties, he was already establishing himself in his chosen field.

FIRST CAMERA

His first camera? Like so many other amateur photographers, Ansel began with a box Brownie, a camera that now reposes in the Eastman house in Rochester, New York bearing a tag that proclaims it as "Ansel Adams' first camera."

By 1931, Ansel considered himself a professional, and in 1932 he had his first one-man show at the M.H. de Young Memorial Museum. At this time he joined with a group of talented photographers to form Group f, 64 dedicated to exhibiting and exploring the expressive potentials of "pure" photography.

During the early '30s Ansel went East to New York which was then, as now, the center of commercial editorial and fashion photography. "I was able to see, in six months, that I did not want to get into the world of the professional advertising or editorial photographer," he says with no regret.

New York, he says, is the center of everything. "This urban core...has the promotional ability to sell us everything—to set the trends." Adams didn't like it in the '30s and he dislikes New York and what it stands for, to him, even more today.

"I think music, art and sculpture today are pretty terrible. Unfortunately, everything is managed and directed from places like New York—the centers of financial concentration.

PRESERVE BEAUTY

"I feel we must preserve everything of beauty. We ought to have conservation of our taste and our spirit, because they are being defiled by outside predatory interests. I'd like to see the 'Madison-Lexington-Park-57th Street complex' cease to exist as a taste-making monster."

If Adams is unable to slay the New York dragon, he has another, larger challenge to meet in the form of nature conservation. Since 1934, he has been on the board of directors of the Sierra Club, that consistently outspoken body of people dedicated to the preservation of America's natural, unspoiled wilderness heritage.

The Sierra Club was founded mainly as a protest against the unchecked overgrazing perpetuated by the sheepmen who threatened to destroy such irreplaceable wilderness treasures as Yosemite Valley. John Muir then called sheep "hooved locusts," a term which might well be applied to today's hordes of despoiling, insensitive tourists.

RESIGNATION

Yet Adams' attitude toward the state of our national parks is one of optimistic resignation.

"Yosemite," he says, speaking of the deluge of summer tourists who have created serious congestion and traffic problems in the great park, "has been 'in' for a long time. Back in 1920 the thing to do was see Yosemite; the railroads were all touting it, because that was the way to go.

"It's in amazingly good condition today, considering the sheer number of visitors. More and more people will come, but there's going to be less physical damage and clutter. We'll keep cars out; we'll bus them in, or use a tram, and once they're inside the park we'll make them use their feet!" he says with his habitual twinkle.

"They're having a terrible problem now with hippies and drugs, but that will be cleaned up, too."

ABOUT CAMPERS

Asked about the modern vacationer, complete with camper and all the household amenities, Adams is again generous. "I think they're as appreciative of natural beauty as the serious backpacker...maybe in a different way. But they all have a right to it—they own it—they're American citizens."

He does, however, speak sadly of the changes wrought by the tourists since he hiked in the mountains as a boy. "There's no dead wood left. The Sierra Club now favors butane gas for cooking because there's nothing left to burn. And the animals are becoming extinct, not so much because of the tourist but because certain factions want programs to eradicate predators, and the whole natural balance is upset. You need predators and rodents and sheep and cattle, everything.

"Fire," he explains, "is just as important a facet of nature as anything else. Before we got so good at putting them out, fires had a selective effect. Under natural conditions, big strong trees survive. Mt. Diablo burns off naturally every 30 years."

FIRES IMPORTANT

He points out his living room window at the hillside. "You used to be able to see quite a lot of rock showing through. Now it's all overgrown. Undergrowth becomes terribly inflammable because it's left to grow. One of these days..." and he gestures upward, "I just hope the fire that's going to happen misses the house. Why," he adds, "the Indians used to burn off Yosemite Valley, get rid of the undergrowth to make it easier to find game, and in doing so they helped create impressive forests.

"All the things we do are directed at preserving ourselves at the expense of our environment," he says sadly.

"There's been a lot of talk, some laws have been passed, but nothing much has happened. People who are aware of the environment are in the minority. Everybody should be aware everyday.

"Out of 200 million people in this country, there are only 200,000 active conservationists, people who do something. But a large number of those merely send some organization a check. The numbef of true activists is much smaller.

"The tragedy is that in all history nobody had it so good—or so bad. The extremes are simply terrifying...

HIPPIES

"I can perfectly understand these hippies—I don't like to call them 'hippies'—most of them are intelligent, vital, good people looking for the life situation they want. I went off to Yosemite in 1937—I suppose you might have called me a hippie—except that I had enough money and didn't have to beg—but I found a lot of wonderful experiences out there that I might have missed otherwise.

"Our future has to rest on the young...it's just that there are different varieties of young. There will have to be a balance between the explosive energy of youth and things as they are, the established order.

"It's perfectly possible to sit back and contemplate a revolution without getting at all involved in it. We could have a 'revolution' and it could come from either the right or the left. If the left keeps needling, the right might very well take over—and they could do it in a very subterfugeous manner...

CIVIL WAR?

"People tend to forget that we did have a Civil War. Why, I can almost foresee a civil war between Northern and Southern California over water rights!"

His mind jumps from one thing to another, all somehow interrelated.

"The oil leases in Santa Barbara...fifteen years ago everybody knew there was danger but no one thought to do anything about it. There's always been leakage. Why, one of the Spanish explorers—I can't remember which one—wrote in his diary that 'the sea glistened with a shiny substance.'

"The problem is that now man has created the mess...but we've always created messes. We cleared hundreds of thousands of acres of hardwood forests; originally, there was forest from the Eastern coast to the Great Plains...all gone now.

ECOLOGICAL FLAP

"This whole ecological flap at the moment is very correct but isn't very realistic. The objectives must be achieved, but the solutions they're offering aren't realistic.

"We want to do away with internal combustion engines and electric power plants, but also want to prevent nuclear power plants...yet we demand power.

"It's without meaning to look back with regret. If we eliminate the auto completely, cities like Los Angeles and San Francisco would have to stop being—and what would we do with the people? We'd have to annihilate more than three-fourths of the population to return to a rural way of life—it just isn't practical."

He looks up and smiles. "Now if someone starts a small war, what's left of us will return to an extremely simplified life. The hippies would love it! And think! A small amount of radioactive material dropped on Lake Ontario...and the photography business is out! Then where would I be?"

He manages to transmit the feeling that the problems facing us are endless and possibly hopeless and yet he conveys hope at the same time.

SACRIFICE

"I think we'll all have to start practicing self-sacrifice on a day-to-day basis, because I can see a time when we really won't have enough food or fuel. We're going to run out of natural resources. In a few years, maybe I'll have enough gas to drive to town two or three times a week...but things will work out. In a catastrophe everybody gets together; in an attrition, everyone is at each other's throat."

In the meantime, Ansel Adams has more to do than sit and wait. He has his profession, his cameras and darkroom, his workshop in Yosemite; he has the form of action the Sierra Club provides; he has the great personal satisfaction of being able to look back over 40 years of success and achievement, of awards and accolades. He says, "If I knew at 25 what I know now, I would have done exactly what I've done, but I would have crystallized my vision. But that's something you learn with age. I'm a realist and an optimist and I hope to live a hell of a long time and I'm going to enjoy every day of it."

City Council to get new budget next week

The regular monthly meeting of the Carmel City Council will be held this Wednesday night, and a number of important issues will be on the agenda.

The main order of business will be the presentation of the 1970-71 budget for Carmel-by-the-Sea. Parts of the budget have already been worked out, but since the fiscal year did not end until midnight, June 30, the total detailed budget will not be known until next week.

Other matters to be considered include the amendment of a city ordinance prohibiting the issuance of rooming house permits to motel operators.

Currently, there are motel and hotel operators who are reportedly using nearby rooming houses to accomodate their overflow. This amendment would prohibit such action.

Also on the agenda is the introduction of a city ordinance which would limit the use of a city business license to a stipulated type of merchandise and-or services to be sold under the license.

This means that instead of issuing a general business license, the City of Carmel would now require the license to be for specific types of business, and that to change operations, a merchant would have to get the approval of Business License Review Board.

The council will also consider a resolution (which can be passed and adopted in the same evening) which would make it illegal to stop one's car on Ocean Avenue between Junipero and the eastern city limits.

In addition, street signs would be erected to indicate "NO STOPPING OR STANDING" along the designated area.

In effect, the adoption of this resolution would prohibit hitch-hiking along Ocean, since stopping to pick anyone up would be illegal.

Other matters for Wednesday's meeting include a public hearing concerning a proposed resolution which would provide for the eventual undergrounding of utilities in the entire business district.

Approximately one-third of the program has already been accomplished, and the next phase covers the area along 6th Street between Junipero and Monte Verde. Such establishments as the Mediterranean Market, the Purity Store Building and the Union 76 gasoline station would be affected by the changeover.

City Council meetings are open to the public and convene at 8 p.m. in the council chambers of the City Hall on Monte Verde between Ocean and 7th.

A 1953 AUSTIN ENGLISH TAXI is the newest addition to Carmel's downtown scene. It is being used by Lord Womble's Pharmacy for prescription deliveries, with Lord Womble handling all deliveries personally. It comes to Carmel after a long, distinguished history of taxi service, logging more than 167,000 miles in London and Manchester. Womble's also announced free one-hour validated parking for his customers in the Carmel Plaza lot, with any purchase. (Photo by Roger Fremier)

CAMILA B. ROSS

Carmel friends of Camilla B. Ross (Mrs. George P.) have learned of her death after a lingering illness, on June 10 in Salem, Oregon.

George and Camilla Ross were long time residents of Carmel, where he was an attorney and once justice of the peace, and always known locally as Judge Ross. They lived for more than 25 years on Lincoln near 3rd Ave., the home now owned by Ruth Whitcomb who retains the "stamp" of the Ross occupancy.

Judge and Mrs. Ross moved in 1963 to Salem to be near their elder son Robert, who now lives in Eugene. Judge Ross will continue to live at their home in Capitol Manor, Salem. Mrs. Ross is also survived by another son, Frank, a one-time Carmel resident, now living in Riverside.

Any vehicle designed to be operated ag 25 miles an hour or less in California has to display a slow-moving vehicle emblem, which is to be a flourescent orange triangle with a red reflective border.

Pamela Ann Martin weds

Pamela Ann Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Martin of Carmel, and Theodore Paul Darolos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Daralos of Santa Fe, New Mexico, were married June 6 at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Faith in Santa Fe, with the Reverend D. R. Walker officiating.

The bride's long ivory gown and cathedral veil were trimmed with Venice lace. Her fresh-flower head band was of daisies and roses and she carried a spring bouquet.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Louis Toro III of Denver. Bridesmaids were Linda Galiskis of Scottsdale, N.Y., and Laurie Daralos, sister of the groom, of Santa Fe. They wore sleeveless yellow gowns and fresh-daisy bandeaus and carried spring bouquets.

Flower girl was the bride's cousin, Melissa Brown of Monterey, who wore a long white organza dress over yellow taffeta and a daisy headdress. She carried a basket of mixed spring flowers.

Best man was John Strohof Lovington, New Mexico, college roommate of the groom. Ushers were the groom's brothers, Charles and Samuel Daralos, and the bride's brother, Roderic Martin of Carmel.

The groom, who received his B.A. at the University of New Mexico, will take his second year in graduate school there for his Master's degree in architecture. The bride received her B.S. in Education on June 5 at U. of N.M. She will teach physical education in the fall in Albuquerque, N.M. which the couple will call home.

The wedding was held away from Carmel because Pam wanted to include her college friends. The Martins flew down for the occasion, then immediately returned for son Rod's graduation from Carmel High School.

PEBBLE BEACH

Set in its own pocket of sunshine in Pebble Beach, this rambling, Ranch style home is a complete delight!

... Inside, gleaming hardwood oak floors and carpeting are a charming contrast to the spotless white interior and raised hearth fireplaces and built-in barbecue.

Enormous picture windows throughout this cheerful home frame green vistas of forest. The master bedroom suite has its own dressing room and private entrance luring you outside to sunbathe.

There are 2½ smartly decorated baths, two more pleasant bedrooms plus a large paneled family room with oak floors and glass walls opening to a wide deck. Formal dining as well!

The kitchen is excellent - with sparkling tiled counters, good storage, refrigerator, range, double oven, dishwasher, disposal, washer and dryer -- all immaculate!

Located within the security of Pebble Beach gates, not far from the Lodge, this gracious home is available for showing and waiting for its new owner.

Do phone us to see it, we'd enjoy showing it to you!

An excellent value for $59,500.

Merchants react to proposal to regulate store displays

The Carmel business community indicated strong but mixed reaction to last week's proposal by City Administrator Hugh Bayless to regulate the internal displays of Carmel stores.

The proposal, in the form of a recommendation to the City Planning Commission at their regular meeting on June 24, calls for the "design approval of all portions of a business structure in the C-1-C district which are visible from any public street or public place."

Bayless, who is solely responsible for the proposal, commented this week that he made his recommendation in the hopes that some sort of regulation can be effected which would legally discourage "the garish and bizarre."

James Peter Cost, president of the Carmel Business Association and owner of the Carmel Seascape Gallery, commented on the proposal: "We're for it 100 per cent. Although I can't speak for the whole Association, I think it's exactly what the town needs. Currently, we have control over the exterior signs and displays, but still insufficient control over those interior parts which are visible from the street.

"If somebody doesn't control it, one or two unscrupulous guys can turn the town into a side-show. If good taste has to be regulated, then let's regulate it."

Less enthusiastic about the proposal was Derek Rayne, owner of Derek Rayne, Ltd. on Ocean Avenue. He pointed out that "there are many more pressing problems in Carmel than worrying about the internal decor of the stores."

Rayne's assistant, Russ Harris, stated: "I'm not going to let those contractors and realtors tell me what good taste is for retail merchandising."

Also skeptical of the proposed regulation was Gunnar Norberg, owner of Norberg's Travel Agency on Dolores Street. He told the Pine Cone that: "the City of Carmel is beset by many problems, none of which have any relationship to the interior displays.

"It seems it is necessary to recall for the city government the preamble of the zoning code, which states that 'Carmel is essentially, predominantly and primarily a residential community...' Today we have problems here which could wreck the unique character of the entire community, if certain essential restraints on 'bigness' are not established on time.

"The nature of internal displays in this context is mere superficial trivia. It is more important to look at the forest than to scan the fallen twigs."

Boyd Dorton, manager of Womble's Pharmacy on Ocean Avenue, is strongly in favor of keeping "the decor, tranquility and friendliness of Carmel.

"However," he added, "this proposal is the totally wrong approach. Legally, they don't have the power to enforce such a regulation. Their intention, no doubt, is a good one, but in a town of this size and character one would think that such controls could be exerted without having to resort to complicated and costly legislation."

Also opposed to the regulation was Vince A. Bruno, partner and manager of Kip's Food Center on Ocean Avenue. He views such a restrictive proposal as "completely prohibiting the merchant from doing his business.

"Nobody can run my grocery store for me. Merchants should be free to do their business within the confines of their own four walls at their own discretion."

In agreement with Bayless and Cost were two other merchants, Henri Corbat of the Swiss Jeweler on San Carlos and Merv Sutton, manager of Nielsen's Market on Dolores.

Corbat stated flatly: "I'm for it. There's too much junk in the store windows in Carmel. A lot of shops should be cleaned up."

Sutton remarked that he was "100 per cent behind such a move. We don't want to have a Coney Island here in Carmel."

the business scene in Carmel

By JAMES PETER COST
President, Carmel Business Assn.

When an artist makes a mistaken he is usually able to paint over it, correct the errors and forget it. But what happens when a town makes a mistake, especially a famous town or district?

I'm thinking now of the cities or districts or the dozens of small famous towns around the United States or the world for that matter, that until recently were able to maintain the distinctiveness that made them famous: towns that until recently maintained the slow pace, the small town feeling, the small quaint friendly shops, the shaded residential areas; towns that until recently were able to resist the insidious intrusions of concrete, neon, acres of "prices slashed" signs, the hard sell and, the 30,000 sq. foot gasoline service stations.

What happens? Does someone make a mistake? Do they want to turn in to the characterless, grotesque, super commercial tourists traps?

Who makes the mistake? Is it the City Council? Is it the business mens' organizations, the mafia, the hippies, the local residents, the voters? Who makes the mistake? Can the mistakes be rectified once they are made? Could the mistakes have been avoided? Are they actually worse off because they made the mistakes?

I arrived in Carmel in August of 1964. I was a stranger in town for about 20 minutes. The day after I arrived I began to feel like one of the pine trees on Ocean Ave. I lived in Long Beach for fourteen years and never did feel like I was part of the town. There is a kind of spirit in Carmel, a charisma, a mutual respect, a knock-on-wood gratefulness we share with each other as if we all had seats in a life boat after we abandoned the ship.

After living and being in business in Carmel for 8 or 10 months, I decided to take a trip all over the United States and see the other friendly little towns that I had heard about. Visitors to Carmel were constantly saying "Carmel is beautiful and friendly but have you been to such and such? Dozens of towns were named. I made a list and eventually took a 13,000 mile town-seeing tour of the United.

My primary purpose was to visit the art areas and galleries. Somehow the two things, art centers and quaint towns seem to go hand in hand. By the time I arrived in Kennybunk Port, the apogee of my orbit, I considered myself an authority on quaint, friendly little towns. I missed a few on the list but added a few as they were recommended.

I saw many beautiful towns with great potential, greater money-making potential perhaps than Carmel but I did not see any town that had the combinations of asset we have in Carmel.

The assets are partly man made and partly natural or accidental. The natural assets are beauty of the general area from San Simeon North as well as the local area which includes the whole Peninsula. We have the asset of location between the two major West Coast cities. Our proximity to historical and lovely Monterey is certainly an asset for many reasons, not the least of which is the Monterey's ability to attract and house sizeable conventions. The same thing applies to Pacific Grove. Fort Ord is perhaps the biggest continuous convention of all times not to mention the many military schools which convene in the area. There are, of course, many other natural and or accidental assets that I won't take the time to go in to.

The greatest asset of all, I believe, has been the unfailing ability of local residents and voters, many of which are businessmen, to elect and select city officials with the brains and foresight enough to maintain and preserve the character of the town. A great many of the people who are directly responsible for Carmel's now unshared uniqueness are, or were businessmen before and while they were officials.

Most businessmen in Carmel are astute enough to know our fame and reputation; consequently our business economy is based on good taste and restraint, but that good taste and restraint is by City ordinance and not just by choice alone. It takes only one or two unscrupulous businessmen or one or two wishy washy city councilmen to make the mistakes that destroy a town. Ferris wheels in the parks, roller coasters on the beach, five floor department stores, 30,000 square foot service stations, malls in the center of town, parking meters, freeways, hot dog stands, garrish and bizarre displays are preventable mistakes almost impossible to rectify after they are made.

When an artist makes a mistake all he has to do is repaint.

What happens when a town makes a mistake?

PARTY PLANS . . .

by Phyllis Jervey

A fascinatingly diversified Fourth of July party in Carmel this Saturday will be the one which Mr. and Mrs. Nelo Drizari plan.

Not only will this occasion celebrate our national holiday but it also combines American and Albanian dishes. Particularily, it's a housewarming to show how beautifully Mrs. Drizari has renovated their home. Nelo, the noted Carmel author, who has resided on Casanova for 15 years, was a bachelor until six months ago. It had long been a tradition for him to receive his Peninsula friends on the Fourth of July. Mrs. Drizari, who formerly headed the French department at Detroit's Allen Park High School, speaks six languages, Albanian, English, French, German, Greek and Italian.

Besides these talents, Euridice, who prefers to be called Viki, has a natural flair for interior decorating and has magically transformed an old-time Carmel house into a modernized home with warm soft colors.

Both of Albanian background, Viki and Nelo love their adopted country and agree that the Fourth is the very special time to assemble their many friends. Nelo founded the Albanian department at the Presidio Defense Language Institute.

When we asked Viki and Nelo what would be "cooking" in their marvelous completely new kitchen for this important event, these are the answers ... exclusively for Party Plans.

Besides libations and hors d'oeuvres there will be several roasted legs of lamb. The latter will be quite simply cooked with garlic slivers slit into the roasts and sprinkled with crushed oregano, salt and pepper. They will be crisply brown on the outside and slightly pinkish inside. The natural juices, fat removed, will be kept hot in bowls on electric servers. To absorb this fragrance is delicate Pilaff-Arnaut. In Turkish and Arabic arnaut means Albanian.

Pilaff-Arnaut

Two cups raw regular rice; 4 T. butter; 4 cups canned chicken broth; 1 t. salt; 1 grated onion; pine nuts.

Saute onion in butter until golden. Drain from butter and save. In butter lightly brown rice, add broth, brought to a boil previously. Combine items in casserile, cover, bake in 350 F. oven 30 min. Liquid should be absorbed. Sprinkle with pine nuts or slivered blanched almonds. Serves 8.

Viki's Spinach Triangles

It is easier to purchase filla thin leaves or sheets than to prepare them herself right now. They are at Carmel's Mediterranean Market. Separate this fragile pastry into pieces so as to make triangles. The filling is an invention of Viki's. For 20 triangles, combine 1 pkg. fresh spinach leaves, minus stems, steam, drain, chop finely, mix with 2 lbs. creamed cottage cheese, 2 sticks melted butter and 6 beaten eggs, a dash of salt. Fill the triangles and bake at 350 F. 20 minutes. One must have a sure touch to make these but they are divine when prepared by Viki as we close neighbors well know and appreciate.

The American part of the Albanian menu is strawberry shortcake expertly prepared by Viki herself. Other typically standard Fourth of July fare is potato salad, deviled eggs, tiny franks with dips, baked ham and a whole fresh poached salmon, served cold with lemon-chive mayonnaise.

Internationalism tastes super! Especially when enjoyed on the Drizari's new deck-terrace overlooking Carmel Beach's bonfires and fireworks this Fourth.

Celebrity tennis to open with new look

Of the almost 100 players in the first Eastwood Celebrity Tennis Tournament, more than 50 are newcomers to the Pebble Beach courts.

First-timers include George Peppard, Jim Garner, Lloyd Bridges, his son, Beau, former Cleveland Brown back Jim Brown, Hugh O'Brien, Robert Wagner, Dean Martin, Jr., Desi Arnez, Jr., Howard Duff and Ron Ely.

With them will be celebrity veterans Efram Zimbalist, Jr., Doug McClure, Jim Franciscus, Macdonald Carey, John Lupton, and defending singles champion, Jim "Lefty" Brown.

Among the ladies debuting on the Pebble courts this year are Claudine Longet, Gia Scala, Connie Hines, Frances Bergen, Madelyn Gonzales, and Kelley Smith.

The sports world is also represented with former Wimbledon player, Barry Mackay, California doubles player Sandy Walker, Ron Lowell, past California mixed doubles champion, Jack Myers, ex-49er, Eagle and Ram back, and Matt Hazeltine, last of the 49ers and rumored to be on his way to the New York Giants.

Host Clint Eastwood and announcer Paul Lippman will open this year's Celebrity matches at 10 a.m. Eight men's doubles matches will follow immediately after the presentation ceremonies.

Social festivities for the occasion include a reception for players Thursday evening, which will be hosted by Clint Eastwood and Aime Michaud, president of Del Monte Properties Company. Del Monte is producing the tournament with all proceeds going to the National Council on Alcoholism.

Parties open to the public are a champagne reception and cocktail dance at the Beach Club on Friday evening and a courtside fizz breakfast on Sunday morning. Saturday evening's barbeque and fireworks are open to Beach Club members and their guests as well as players and tournament officials.

Tickets for all matches and for the various get-togethers can be obtained from the Beach and Tennis Club courts or from N.C.A. offices in Monterey. The numbers to call are: 624-0106 and 624-5641.

Bank of America passbooks shift into high.

Sweet deal.

5¾% on our Investors Passbook account. That's a nice, hefty, rate increase for bank passbook convenience. And a wise way to invest in these uncertain times.

What's more, at Bank of America you have three ways to earn high passbook interest. It all depends on how long you want to keep your funds invested. Let's take it from the top.

5¾% Investors Passbook.
Leave your money with us for two years and it will earn 5¾% annual interest. Compounded and paid quarterly. $500 minimum deposit. And you can add to it any time in amounts of $100 or more.

5½% Investors Passbook.
If a one-year maturity is about right for you, we'll pay you 5½% interest. The same $500 minimum applies, as well as the privilege of adding to your investment in amounts of $100 or more.

5% Investors Passbook.
This is our short term offer. 90-day maturity. And you earn 5% annual interest. Again, a $500 minimum opens an account. Add to it in amounts of $100 or more.

That's our new rate story. But you haven't heard the end of it. The security of the world's largest bank. It's always been the clincher for saving at Bank of America.

We think you should make money minus worry. The business of living can have its enjoyable moments. Save with us.

the mayor's report

By BARNEY LAIOLO

The unfortunate incident of the remarks made and the subsequent reports by the media did one thing in my way of thinking - it proved that the choice of the Council in placing the stone on Lincoln and Ocean Avenue was right. The response by the people concerned with our men who fought and died for their country and who came in numbers to support their cause was outstanding.

The street department has been given notice to see to the daily removal of old flowers and to the proper appearance of the stone and its surroundings which shall be kept clean and presentable.

Much thought and consideration was given this plaque previous to the authorization of this site. The fact that it is dedicated to our own boys from this area and remembrance of them in a place visible to all is wholly justified.

I deeply regret that the incident occurred.

The American Legion has been doing an excellent job distributing our leaflets to visitors and they will be doing it again over the 4th of July weekend. The acceptance to these leaflets has been very good and it seems that at present all is working well. It is my hope that this advice will keep some youth from being involved with some law he may have not known existed.

xxx

The Council will be getting into budget studies very soon. It is hoped that we may keep our tax base as it presently is and every effort will be made to eliminate any unnecessary and unneeded proposal. Conscience study will be given all department reports and changes and suggestions will be dealt with the taxpayers in mind.

VISION CARE

BY DR. R.E. MARLIN
(consulting optometrist)

What does it mean when you have 20-20 or 20-40 vision?

Dear Mr. R.A.

The term "20-20" refers to the size of letters which are readable 20 feet away. These letters are about 3/8 of an inch high. If the letters must be made larger in order to be readable the denominator becomes larger as 20-40, 20-100 and so. A person whose vision is 20-40 would require letters twice the size or would have to be at ½ the distance. 20-40 or better is the requirement for a driver's license.

Unfortunately, the presence of 20-20 vision does not guarantee that one has comfortable binocular vision. Some people have 20-20 vision and still need corrective eyewear. Only a professional eye examination can determine this.

Please send in your questions.

Letter To The Editor

Editor, Carmel Pine Cone
Carmel, California

Dear Sir:

Last week's interesting and informative article on annexation to Carmel concluded that residents in the adjacent areas would be favorably influenced by any plan that would avoid a property tax increase. In this connection, it should be kept in mind that if the substantial tax base represented by these areas were added to the existing tax base within the city limits, there could not possibly be a commensurate increase in the cost of extending city services. Hence it follows that the city tax rate would be reduced for both the old and new residents by spreading a slightly increased budget over a greatly increased assessment.

If this reasoning is correct—and I believe studies exist to confirm it—the hypothetical tax increase of $75 after insurance savings in the example used in your article would be considerably less. One must also remember that property taxes are deductible for federal and state income tax which for most people would mean upwards of a 20 per cent credit. And looking to the future one might well be concerned that taxes in the unincorporated areas could rise faster than in Carmel with increased demand for services by a growing population.

Admiral Fisher deserves support in suggesting that the entire area immediately surrounding Carmel should be a single governmental unit subject to an electorate of citizens with common problems and aspirations. We would still be a small town with the kind of close-to-the-people government that Carmel has always enjoyed.

My home is just outside the city limits now, but I am looking forward to the time when I can have Carmel police and fire protection, as well as a voice in Carmel affairs, for whatever modest tax increase I might still face after allowance for all the offsets that will tend to minimize it. If the increase were to be as much as $5 per month, it would still be a bargain.

Sincerely yours,
Robert H. Evans

Petpourri

BY JUDITH EISNER

No matter how careful a dog owner tries to be, accidents do happen and dog and master are separated. An unlocked gate, a hastily-shut door, too wide an opening of a car window, these and countless other possibilities arise that turn a friendly and beloved family pet into a lost dog.

You have all no doubt read or heard tales of a dog's miraculous "homing instinct." There are documented accounts of animals traveling hundreds of miles to be reunited with their owners--one of the best such true sagas being The Incredible Journey by Sheila Burnford. But don't be deluded by these rare happenings; the average family dog can't find his way home from a mile away---and that bold statement has been documented, too!

A dog who roams freely--as no dog should--may be familiar with a large surrounding area and may be able to find his way home from a distance of five or ten miles; so may a dog of the hunting breeds such as a setter or spaniel, whose sense of smell is keenly developed. But your coddled pet doesn't stand a chance.

In addition to secure fences, locked car doors and stout leashes and collars, there are a number of precautionary measures you can take to assure your pet's return should he be lost.

Every dog should be licensed annually. And he should have his license tag securely affixed to a strong collar. Paying for a license and stashing it away in some kitchen drawer is depriving your dog of the potential identification a license should provide.

In addition to a license, we feel that every dog should wear an I.D. tag giving the name, address and phone number of his owner. The reason for this second tag is that if your dog is found by a private individual, he can contact you directly. If the dog wears only a county license tag, only the County Animal Shelter has the owner's name on file. I.D. tags can be obtained from various sources; we like one that can be printed to order rather than following a set pattern, and we omit the dog's name and substitute "REWARD for return to:" For many years, the belief circulated in dog circles that the dog's name should not appear on a tag because it only enabled an unscrupulous person to befriend the dog more easily should he find him.

In addition to tags, you should keep a list of identifying marks and scars your dog has, and supplement this with a good photo or two. One of the biggest problems of identifying lost pets arises when the Pound or SPCA must decide what kind of dog yours is. If he is not purebred, you may know that his mother was a Cocker Spaniel and his father a Dachshund, but a well-meaning kennelman may classify your little reddish-brown dog as a "terrier-beagle cross," or some such. Then, if you call the shelter rather than going in person and ask for a Cocker-Dachsie mix, you may be told they have no such dog although he is there all the time!

It helps to be able to add to a general description that the dog has a bobbed tail, or a notched ear, or a small scar on his lower right foreleg, or a black spot in the middle of his tail or whatever unique marking he bears.

Eventually, we hope to be able to recommend, without qualification, an absolute method of animal identification in the form of tattooing. The tattoo is now used for such purposes and is ideal in that it is painless, inexpensive and permanent.

The problem is that this seemingly-perfect method is spoiled because there are a number of companies who register your dog's tattoo. Each one claims to be the best, but as long as there are national and statewide and private registries, there can be no absolute identification. If you find a dog with a tattoo, which registry do you call since the tattoo is a code number? You can, of course tattoo your social security number on the dog, but the chances are that the social security people won't disclose your name and address to an unidentified stranger who claims to have found a tattooed dog! So, in the meantime, we can only hope that someday these various firms will merge and provide the public with one central dog registry.

If you lose your dog, act immediately. Don't wait around hoping he'll turn up. Contact the County Pound and the SPCA that very day and describe the dog; give them his license number and tell them what other identification he bears. Then, once the trucks that round up strays return for the day, make a personal visit to these places. Don't depend on telephone descriptions to locate your dog.

Alert neighbors and shopkeepers in the area. If your dog isn't found shortly, alert the police, the Sheriff's office and Highway Patrol. Make posters describing the dog and offering a reward, if possible, and post these in prominent places such as post offices, supermarkets, school bulletin boards. If you can afford to, you can advertise in the local newspapers and on radio as well. You can record a 30-second "spot" announcement about your lost dog that will be played as frequently as you can afford it.

Be sure the local children are recruited for your search. Kids see more than adults, and they tend to know the local dogs and where they've last been seen. The offer of a reward is an added incentive, but the satisfaction of reuniting dog and master is usually enough to motivate the youngsters.

Last but not least, don't give up! Dogs have been found weeks and even months after they were lost. Keep frequenting the animal shelters; question the local veterinarians. You can contact out-ot-town shelters and newspapers. Keep the issue alive, for the more prominent the dog's disappearance is in the community, the greater the chance that he will be found.

Remember, your dog wants to come home as much as you want him to. You must do everything possible to help him find his way.

Ready for a fashion show is the way Carmelites are accustomed to seeing Kaye Scott, former secretary of the Carmel Business Association.

Since Kaye began remodeling her house -- personally doing much of the carpentry and painting -- the contrast is interesting. Friends will still recognize the pretty face -- but not the costume: paint-decorated blue jeans and sweat shirt.

Otto Heinz of Carmel, physicist at the Naval Postgraduate School, Mrs. Heinz, and their sons, Peter, Tony and Steven will spend Mr. Heinz' sabbatical year in Vienna, Austria, where both senior Heinzes were born.

Heinz will work on several projects utilizing the research resources of the University of Vienna. The boys will attend an international school. The family will return to their Upper Trail home in the summer of 1971.

Joann Waring, daughter of Dorothy and Donald Waring of Carmel, received one of four $50 checks given to students for books during college years by the Carmel Republican Women's Club. Carmel High School selected Joann for her interest and achievement in public affairs. She will attend Monterey Peninsula College, majoring in political science.

Where does a travel agent book his own family for a holiday? Last weekend Gunnar Norberg chose a spot for his wife Barbara and their son and daughter, Eric and Karin, that isn't in any of his travel brochures.

The Norbergs went to a cabin in the Sierras that has been owned by Barbara's family, the Collinses of Fresno, for the past 100 years. Various relatives take turns vacationing there.

Gunnar planned to return to Carmel early this week, while Barbara may remain over the July Fourth weekend, Eric and Karin longer to be with congenial cousins.

Going on vacation? Tell us about it. Your friends, the Pine Cone's readers, will enjoy the details. If you don't want to announce an empty house, do fill us in when you return.

"We're going to trade kids," answered Mark Cropley, one of the Pine Cone's salesmen, when asked if his family had vacation plans. He explained this cryptic reply: Mark, 10, will visit an 11-year-old cousin in another Peninsula city, while Matt Cropley, 8, will have as his Carmel guest the 11-year-old's brother, 9. Thus neither mother has more than her usual quota of youngsters -- and six-sevenths of the Cropley children still live at home.

A dilemma with a no-shift deadline for solving it faces the Pine Cone's distinguished photographer Roger Fremier, his wife Allene and son Andy, 10.

On a girl's name for the baby arriving later this month, all three are in agreement. But they can't settle on a boy's name.

"We each have a vote," explained Allene, "but -- we each have a veto, too. And the choice has to be unanimous."

"We don't want a Tom-Dick-or-Harry name," said Roger. "But we don't like names that are too far out, either."

Help anyone? Once the bundle of joy is delivered, those Vital Statistics people don't dig much shillyshallying. Drop a card to the Pine Cone at Box G-1, or phone the office, 624-3881. If your name choice isn't the Fremiers', remember, it could have been a two-to-one favorite!

All this is reminiscent of an episode in Allene's childhood. She is the daughter of the late Allen Knight, whose family of five all bore first names beginning with "A". This fact was published in Robert Ripley's Believe It Or Not along with the notation that a fourth child was expected.

"Names poured in by the dozen, literally from all over the world," say Allene and her sister Alys Bliesner. "Mostly terrible." They were largely old fashioned names not in much current favor, like Absalom, Algernon, Athelstan, Adeline, Agatha and Arabella. The baby, incidentally, named Andrea, did not survive.

Collins Plumma, Carmel's first dog catcher, and formerly custodian at Harrison Memorial Library, was married last weekend in Reno to Fanny Ware of Seattle, Wash. The groom's daughter Brenda, nine, attended. Mr. and Mrs. Plumma will make their home in Washington state.

Dr. Neale assumed his new duties yesterday, succeeding Rev. Alex Bryans who, on the same day, began his new work at the First United Methodist Church of Santa Rosa.

Decorations for the reception will be carried out by Mrs. Joseph Reeves. Hospitality committee members include Mesdames John Christie, Fred Farley, Joseph Friedman, Ella Jean Harnish, Ray Jude and A.R. Pike.

Pouring tea and coffee at the event will be Mesdames Allene Brocchini, Lauchlin Currie, Harry Goebel, Merritt Metcalf, Howard Runion and Miss Lois Shuette.

Mrs. Ronald MacPherson is the new president of the Carmel Woman's Club.

Mrs. Walter Tittle is spending two summer months in Spain and Portugal.

One of Carmel's problems was solved with ease and the help of Carmel Post 512 of the American Legion. The pamphlet entitled "The Price of Peace in Carmel" which contains the "do's and don'ts" of Carmel City laws so that the visitor can enjoy the village, faced a distribution problem.

Last weekend Past Commanders Roland Pilon and Bob Gilmour stood on the corner of Ocean Avenue and Carpenter and distributed the pamphlets, which reportedly were well accepted. Over 1,500 were handed out to visitors to the village.

Gilmour had a particularly interesting experience when one of the motorists, in turn, gave him a pamphlet entitled "You need to be saved!"

Pilon agreed; Gilmour agreed too on the condition that Pilon read it also.

Weber Covered Barbecue Kettle

To guarantee tender, juicy outdoor cookery this holiday weekend, be sure to use the original standard of excellence in covered cooking -- the fabulous Weber covered barbecue kettle.

Why Foods Cook Better ... In a Weber!

Weber kettles cook better with reflected heat, which combines the economy of an oven with the zest of a barbecue. With the exclusive Weber cover in place, foods cook in their own juices -- stay flavorful, juicy and tender, even when "well done". A unique damper system controls heat to suit you, bringing out the matchless flavor of the finest cuts. Even less expensive meats are transformed into gourmet delights.

The Weber Principle

The Weber uses two grills -- the upper for food, the lower for charcoal. Air circulates all through the charcoal to distribute heat evenly, sealing in flavor and juices.

Weber Economy

Weber kettles are built to outlast ordinary barbecues, and what's more, Weber gives you real economy too! You'll use fewer briquettes to begin with; when through, close all dampers and the coals go out almost immediately. Dad will be able to use the same coals up to five times. Your Weber will practically pay for itself in charcoal savings alone.

You'll find a complete selection of Webers at Brinton's, starting at $32.95. You'll also find a complete barbecue accessories department to suit your Weber to your own needs.

Books, Signs and Symbols of the Times is the theme of the 10th annual Book Fair at the Parish Hall of All Saints Church, Lincoln and 9th, Thursday, July 9 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The usual large selection of books will be augmented by sheet music and records, pictures, picture frames and library accessories, plus a special sale this year of posters and prints denoting the fair's theme, including Dali zodiac, peace, ecology and other current symbolic posters.

A "silent auction" of rare and special books will be a new feature of the fair. Items include limited and first editions, out of print reference books and a unique two-volume work on birds. El Frieda Liese will autograph copies of her book, "Curious Customs of Carmel." The auction is from 10 to 11:30 a.m., and successful bidders must be present at the final time.

A snack bar will serve throughout the sale. From 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. a patio buffet will feature "Earth Day Foods." Free baby sitting service will be provided for book hunters.

Donations of books, prints and music may be taken to the Parish Hall mornings, or pick-up arranged by phoning Mrs. Donald Taugher, 372-7248, or Mrs. Alfred Cooper, 372-9267.

St. Bede's Guild sponsors the event to maintain the church's Vera Millis Memorial Library, and to support school libraries, scholarship funds and ecumenical projects such as Camp Amigos.

the conscience of Carmel

BY GUNNAR NORBERG

"Why don't we ever get a chance to vote for mayor around here? People in Monterey and Pacific Grove and Seaside, and most anyplace else seem to? Why don't we? Just how is the mayor picked here in Carmel?"

Questions like those have been asked frequently through the years. The answers aren't hard to give. The people of Carmel never elect a mayor. The city councilmen decide, every two years, just after the city elections, which one of them is to act as mayor for the next two-year period. Sometimes they do the choosing right at the council table in the city hall in full sight and hearing of whatever public may be present. At other times they decide behind closed doors in what is called "executive session" and then return to the council chamber to record the result. Whichever way the decision is made, no reasons are usually given for the choice which is made, and none are required by law.

There is a kind of rough rule-of-thumb in the selection of a mayor for Carmel, which most councilmen would say they consider in naming a mayor, and which sometimes even determines the choice. This unwritten rule states that the councilman who was the top vote-getter in the most recent election, should become the next mayor.

Application of this rule-of-thumb would sometimes mean that a new councilman would also become the new mayor. It did so twice in the past decade: in 1960 when Frank Putnam, then just elected to the city council, became mayor; and again in 1968, when Barney Laiolo became mayor. In the case of the three others who served as Carmel mayors in the sixties -- Eben Whittlesey, Herbert Blanks, and Steve Grant -- each had been in office two years as a councilman before being named mayor, and none had had the highest vote in the election in which he had first become a councilman. Two, in fact, had had the low vote in the year each was originally elected to the City Council. The third, Eben Whittlesey, had had the second-highest vote in the year he was first elected to the Council, and then had the highest popular vote in the year he was surprisingly deprived by his fellow councilmen of the mayoralty.

You can see, therefore, that getting the top vote in a given Council election during the sixties, was no guarantee that a man would immediately become Carmel's mayor, nor even that he would keep the post of mayor if he already held it. The all-too-evident fact here is that the voters of Carmel, neither directly nor indirectly, have any determining voice in the choice of mayor.

Why, you ask, shouldn't Carmel people have a right by means of the ballot box, to decide who's going to be mayor? And if they should, how can they?

Carmel is what's called a "general law" city which simply means its operations are directly governed by state law. And state law specifies that "general law" cities are to provide for election of city councilmen and that those councilmen are to decide, every two years, which one of them is to become the next mayor. The supposed original intent of this election system was that city councilmen would be better able to decide who would make the "best" mayor than would voters generally.

However, in recent years, the state law was changed to permit popular election of mayors in cities such as Carmel.

But the new provision established the requirement thatCity Councils would first have to place a question on the ballot to give voters the chance to decide if they would, or would not, want to vote directly for mayor.

Some city councils did put such a question to the voters and voters,offered the choice,generally said they wanted a hand in deciding who would hold office as their mayors. (In this area, Seaside -- another "general law" city -- is nowadays voting directly for mayor because the electorate, offered the choice, decided that was the way they wanted to pick their mayors).

Here in Carmel, the first step has been, and continues to be, the difficult one. And that's getting the question of electing a mayor on a future election ballot. Again and again, when I was a city councilman here, I tried to get just such a question on the ballot but no Council majority was ever willing to put the question on the ballot. Why? They liked things the way they were. The wanted to keep the right to decide who was going to be mayor.

As things stand, only a change of heart on this subject by the present, or a future, Council could get the elect-a-mayor question on a city election ballot -- unless, of course, the state legislature were to amend existing law to force all "general law" cities to hold elections for mayors as well as for councilmen. (Many long-established cities, such as Monterey and Pacific Grove have state-approved "charters" which generally provide for the separate election of mayors and councilmen).

The mayor is the central figure in, and the chief spokesman for the City of Carmel, and I believe the electorate should be given the chance at least to decide if they want to vote for him directly. The City Council has plenty of time now to decide if if wants to put the question of electing a mayor on the next city election ballot.

If you have views on the subject, let your Councilmen know.

Carmelite heads engineering unit at Postgraduate School

Dr. Sydney R. Parker of Carmel succeeds Dr. Charles H. Rothauge as chairman of the Electrical Engineering Department at the Naval Postgraduate School, July 1.

Parker joined the faculty in 1966 from the University of Houston where he was a professor of electrical engineering.

He is a native of New York and a graduate of The City College of New York where he received his bachelor's degree in electrical engineering in 1944.

After serving as an officer with the U.S. Army Signal Corps for three years, Dr. Parker continued his studies at the Stevens Institute of Technology at Hoboken, N.J., where he received the master's and doctor of science degrees.

Following graduate study, he taught at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Department of Electrical Engineering. In 1951, he joined the engineering staff of the International Resistance Company at Philadelphia.

Dr. Parker was employed by the Radio Corporation of America from 1952 until 1956 when he joined the faculty of the City College of New York, first as an assistant and then as associate professor. He moved to the University of Houston in 1965.

The new department chairman is a member of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the New York Academy of Science, the American Association for Engineering Education, the American Association of University Professors, Eta Kappa Nu, Sigma Xi, and Tau Beta Pi.

Dr. Parker has written a well known book on feedback control systems, has contributed many technical papers in the areas of control theory and circuit theory, and has served as a consultant for many companies including North American Rockwell Corporation in Anaheim, Calif. Currently he is involved in research concerning the use of computers to design electronic circuits.

Dr. Parker, his wife, Dorothy, and family live at 2727 Pradera Road in Carmel.

Young scientists study astronomy, botany, radio

Mark Twain once remarked: "the boy who grabbed a cat by the tail received several times more information about cats than the boy who only watched."

There are no cats at the Summer Science Club this summer, but the members—boys and girls 10 to 14—have every chance to grasp a source of information directly.

During the first week's project, on radio and electricity, every member built his own two-transistor radio and then found out how it worked. Tidepooling and marine life was the following week's project, and daily every member got the feel of sea urchins, rock crabs, and other organisms of the shore community.

After five days of viewing and handling, Pachygrapsus crassipes was no longer a mere name but a lined shore crab with personality.

This is the third week of the Summer Science Club, held daily Monday through Friday at the Junipero Serra School (Carmel Mission) science lab, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Club was organized for the summer vacation weeks by Doug Pease, science teacher for the elementary grades at Junipero Serra and Santa Catalina schools.

Each week is devoted to a complete project; this week it's trees and flowers of the Monterey Peninsula; next week it will be microscopic investigations, chemistry, rocks and minerals, magnetism, astronomy, and extra-sensory perception.

Members may join for one week only, or for several weeks, and the fee is $20 per week. Membership is limited to 12 each week, but there are still openings for those who would like to join.

For further details, call Mr. Pease after 5 p.m. at 372-3966, or visit the Club at 10 a.m. weekdays.

Linda Simpson, Pebble Beach artist, and her husband Ned dropped in at the preview of the DeGroat graphics show at the Laky Gallery on San Carlos and Linda told me she is very busy setting up the new gift shop for the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, which she plans to open on July 2. The shop will carry art books, museum reproductions of jewelry and small sculptures, and original pieces of art, ceramics, and sculpture by local artists.

Barbara Johnson, the Carmel Valley painter, reported that her daughter Lucinda, who just graduated from Carmel High School, is all registered at Davis for the Fall and was lucky in getting a painting course from the well-known "pop" artist Wayne Thiebaud. This summer, in addition to three different jobs Cindy is also taking two courses at MPC - drawing from Bob Nelson and painting from Alex Gonzales.

xxx

In my travels to the galleries last week I stopped by the Carmel Seascape Gallery, Dolores between 5th and 6th and visited with Betty Jo Cost, whose daughter Shelley just graduated from Carmel High. In the Fall Shelley will be attending the California Institute of Art in Southern California. This summer she is working for dad, James Peter Cost, and will also be running the gallery several days a week to pick up some valuable experience. Currently, she is on a short jaunt to Hawaii.

xxx

At the Don Langford Gallery in Carmel Square, Joyce Jenkins told me that Don is on a painting expedition in Canada right now, and hopes to celebrate his first year anniversary in Carmel during August with all new paintings done on this current trip.

xxx

Next door at the Jacobs Gallery, Ralph Jacob's mother mentioned that Ralph returned in February from three months in Europe and has been busily painting every since from his European sketches. One of these days we will all get to see these new works, she promises.

xxx

Bumped into Jeannie Wilsdon at the Village Artistry on Dolores where she is currently showing her newest works. Three years ago Jeannie developed her own new style which she calls Acrylic Constructions. They are mostly portraits or figure studies and consist of laminated pieces of mounting board in which the design has been cut. They resemble a bas relief hard edge painting and are very striking. She also does ink drawings using felt pen ink as her medium.

NEWS FROM THE CARMEL ART ASSOCIATION

Carmel Art Association member Charles Thomas is celebrating a lucky strike in the Mother Lode, where he won a second prize for oils in the Mother Lode Art Festival. The same day he heard that he had grabbed another second in the Stockton Citizens Federal Show sponsored by the Society of Western Artists.

John Cunningham, director of the Carmel Art Institute, and Board member of the Carmel Art Association is in Washington, D.C. He was invited to a reception at the National Gallery for a special showing of the Nathan Cunning's collection o contemporary art, which includes one of John's paintings.

Gregory Higgins, Carmel Art Association member, is taking eighteen of his sculptures to New York for a one-man show at the Lippy Corporation.

Peter Perssons, new director of the Pacific Grove Art Center on Lighthouse Avenue was hanging the new show in Gallery II the other day when I stopped by to see him. It consists of the original illustrations for a book "The Royal Birds" by Lillian Grace Paca. The book has received international recognition, and the illustrations show the author's respect for the moods of birdlife and wildlife. Miss Paca, who is now 84, began her career at 65, and has become a successful newspaper columnist, as well as author-illustrator.

Opening on July 7 at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art on Pacific St. will be an exhibition of Mexican Indian Costumes and scenes from the Pre-Columbian period, loaned by the Museum of Anthropology in Mexico City in cooperation with the Monterey Bicentennial Committee. The exhibit contains 66 life-sized mannequins illustrating aspects of life of the Mexican Indians, and has rarely been seen outside its setting in Mexico City where the Museum is located in Chapultepec Park. Oil paintings and explanatory legends will be mounted on panels to supplement the various tableaux.

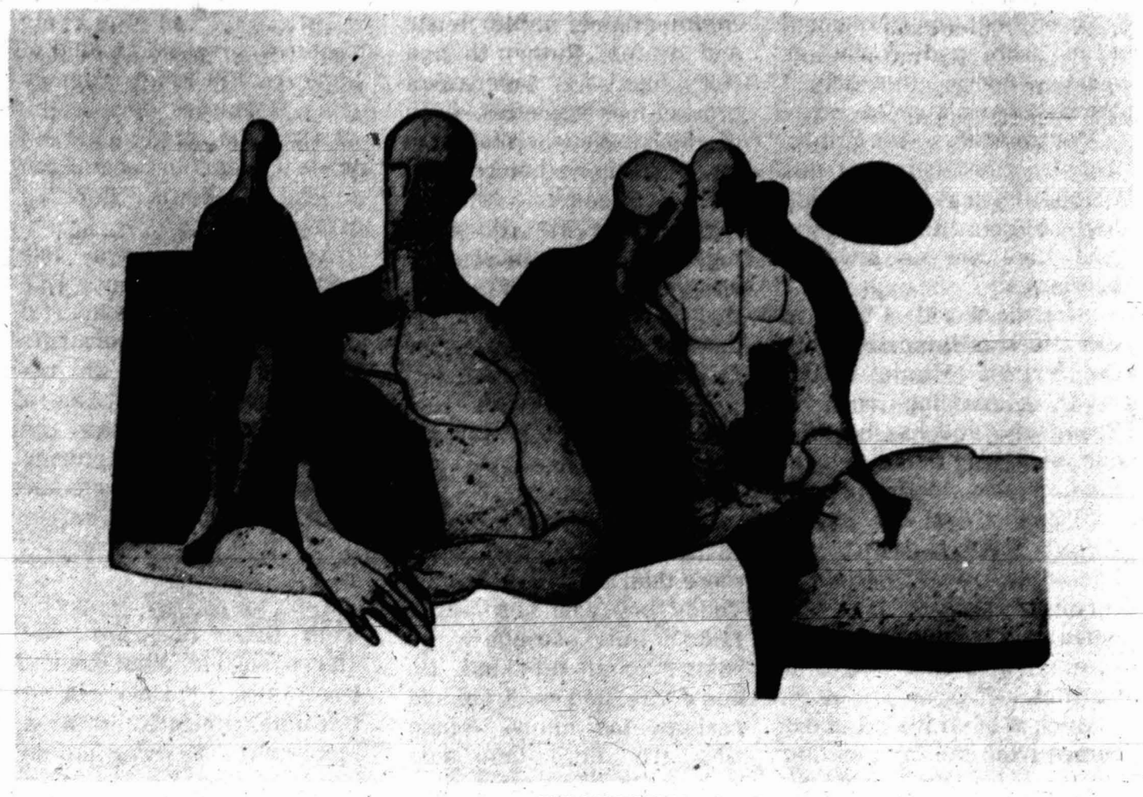
Living in an art-conscious community like Carmel one can easily take for granted all the art which surrounds us on every corner. However, it only takes one visit to places like Salinas or San Jose to realize just how much art is produced here on the Peninsula. And unfortunately "produced", or "turned out" are terms which must be used in reference to some of the art sold in our local shops. Too often the lure of the almighty dollar overcomes the true creative spirit, and the product begins to lose its freshness and creativity, and take on the aspect of assembly-line merchandise. In my visits to galleries, artists and the public have commented that the quality of art sold in some of our local shops is slipping, and if it continues our village will begin to take on the look of a quaint Coney Island. For interesting reading on this subject drop in to the Laky Gallery and ask Les to show the article on "Schlock Art" from the National Observer.

DeGroat graphics at Laky Gallery

BY BILL STONE



"PHARISEES" by George DeGroat

The recent work of George DeGroat was previewed last Friday at the Laky Gallery. The artist was present at the opening, which consisted primarily of graphics, a form of art which is gaining much popularity in today's art-conscious world.

Graphics includes such techniques as etching, lithography, serigraphy (silkscreen), aquatint, woodcut, linoleum cut—techniques which produce original art work in editions of more than one.

These are considered original works of art, but because there are more than one of each "picture," they do not command the value of an original oil, watercolor, or acrylic painting. However, if produced honestly, the artist actually prints each number of the edition and signs it. It therefore retains its status as original art.

When purchasing any original print, a glance at the bottom of the print will identify the registration number, and this will establish the number of prints in the edition. The artist with integrity will destroy the original plate or block at the end of the edition.

George DeGroat is showing five etchings, two woodcuts, one lithograph, two charcoal drawings, four monoprints and a line drawing. The most impressive works in the show are the etchings, which are printed in sepia. They show a strong sense of design using the human form as subject matter, and the use of negative space is exciting. "Tribute to Dr. King" is particularly outstanding with the outstretched hands reaching into white space, and the word "KING" integrated into the design.

The figures are severely outlined in a hard edge style, and in asking George about this he told me that the effect is achieved by actually cutting out the shapes from the etched plate instead of printing the plate in its original rectangular form. In this way he has done several with two printings on the same print. The result is unusual and extremely dramatic, as is demonstrated in "Pharisees," (see picture).

The charcoal drawings and woodcuts are all based on the Don Quixote theme, with the emphasis on the figure of Don Quixote himself. The monoprints are done in two colors and based on the human form.

Moser elected by Citizens Committee

The Board of Supervisors of the Carmel Citizens Committee has elected Earl Moser to its membership as executive vice-president to fill the unexpired term of Bernard Anderson through Dec. 31, 1971.

Anderson had previously submitted his resignation to the board, explaining that he felt he could best serve the community by retaining only his seat on the Carmel City Council.

Moser had served on the board earlier, through Dec. 31, 1969, but was not a candidate for re-election because of travel plans at the time. He has been active in city and county civic affairs, and has been named co-chairman for the Citizens Committee on the Sewage Bond election Aug.4.

MRS. MONNETTE CRAIG

Monnette Craig, wife of the late Donald Craig of Carmel, died June 27 in a sanatorium in San Francisco.

Simple Christian Science services preceeded cremation. Her next of kin, Lucian Scott of New York will arrange for her ashes to be scattered off the Point Lobos Coast.

Mrs. Craig is described by friends as a radiant personality and a gallant spirit. Her late husband was a teacher for many years at Carmel High School, where a building bearing his name memorializes him.

Bill Asp and LaVonne Andrews magnificent in 'Stop the World'

Let's face it.

An off-beat type of musical - such as 'Stop the World' - is a huge success - but only if the stars are a huge success.

Fortunately, the Studio Theatre's production of this unique musical has Bill Asp and LaVonne Rae Andrews. And they are--as always--brilliant.

'Stop the World - I Want to Get Off' was imported from the British Music Halls, made a rousing run on Broadway, and has become one of those steady spectaculars around the nation.

It opened at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant in Carmel last week and plays through July. It will definitely light up the summer theatrical stages in Carmel.

Much of what it's all about comes from the imagination of the audience. It is a combination of mime, music and drama. Rather than a story line, it is a series of provocative vignettes, each of which has some relation to what has gone before, and what is to come.

To make it all hang together, and a thoroughly enjoyable evening of modern theatre, the two stars must definitely rise to superior heights. Bill Asp as Littlechap and LaVonne Rae Andrews as his wife (and his paramours) have done just this.

Littlechap may be a British type, but he is much more than that. He may be a Teddy boy who becomes a Lord, but somehow he ralates to all mankind. He has a wife, and children, and perhaps too many women who are more than just friends.

Bill Asp, as the role requires, gives some kind of super-reality to an ordinary chap. He mimes, he sings, he dances, he cries out--and when it seems to become too much, he shouts, Stop the World...

As Evie--and Anya, Ilse and Ginnie--LaVonne Rae Andrews has a wonderful opportunity to demonstrate her versatility--as an actress, as a singer, as a personality. She has the unique talent of capturing the essence of each role she portrays, and comes across the footlights with a radiant warmth.

The songs are superb--from those that are well known, such as What Kind of Fool Am I, Once in a Lifetime, Gonna Build Me a Mountain ... to some not so well known but wonderfully sung, such as Meilinki Mellchidh and Typische Deutsche.

Bill Asp, besides the starring role, directed and choreographed this splendid production. Musical direction and the piano accompaniment were very well done by Emma Sue Amos. The lighting, which was superb, and the sets were by Bob Evans, jr., and the interesting costuming was by Judy Evans.

Capably filling in, and frequently taking the spotlight, were Becky Douglas, Evelyn Hughes and Peter Granoff. The chorus, which also made a very attractive background for Littlehcap's unusual activities, is mostly newcomers, and a thrilling experience this must be for them, includes John Baker, Marie Catey, Monica Madden, Mindy Rayne, Nina Weisman and Wynn White.

GMD

LAVONNE ANDREWS (Evie) and Bill Asp (Littlechap) play the leading roles in "Stop The World - I Want To Get Off" at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant. The supporting cast includes, second row, Beky Douglas, Marie Catey, Wynn White and Evelyn Hughes, and (back row) Monica Madden, Mindy Rayne, Nina Weisman, John Baker and Peter Granoff. The musical comedy success of the 1962-63 Broadway season is on stage nightly except Monday and Tuesday at the Studio.

Sunrise to Sunset

By DOROTHY BOWMAN

It's "Artists in Action" time again at Sunset Center, but our regularly scheduled program has been postponed until the first Saturday in August. On behalf of our resident and guest artists, I regret we must defer our monthly program. However, the combination of the July 4th holiday and the work being done on our stage make it difficult to hold our open house at this time.

On August 1 the Carmel Weaving Guild, a part of the Carmel Craft Guild, plans a very fine program of weaving and spinning demonstrations. For those of you who missed their popular program at our last open house, we welcome you to visit us on Saturday, August 1, from 1-6 p.m. at 8th and San Carlos. You'll get a firsthand view of all our fine artists and craftsmen at work.

The performing artists at Sunset will have a fine opportunity to present their programs with the newly equipped acoustical panels now being built on stage. The work is being directed by Mr. Richard Brace, with the assistance of Mike Becker who is Stage Manager during the Bach Festival. The acoustical panels are being built and assembled for the improved shell, long awaited by our four musical groups using Sunset, as well as our famed Bach Festival performers.

Many of the July concerts have already been sold out, and we are eagerly awaiting the arrival of our musicians on July 6. All of Sunset will be filled with music and rehearsals throughout the month.

Be sure to keep in mind our series of free Sunday afternoon concerts beginning July 12. They are held in the lovely outdoors setting of our own Forest Theater. The Beyer String Quartet will launch the first program of the summer season. On the following Sunday afternoon, Pat Wester and her Ballet Troupe will present a recital of her students. I shall keep you informed of the many fine programs in store for you as time goes by.

I am happy to announce that the Cultural Commission has approved the purchase of a projector for presentation of many fine films at Sunset Theater. We are looking ahead to showing professional films as well as developing a "Fun with Film' program. I suspect many of our Peninsula travelers have rolls of movies tucked away on the shelf that need some fresh airing to friends and public alike. Just as our "Record Collectors Hour" was presented free for your listening enjoyment, we shall offer more such programs in the future.

We are pleased that our new stage manager, Jack Whittaker, gave a very enthusiastic report of the Phillipine Dance Troupe that performed on June 24 in behalf of the old Monterey Bicentennial Phillipine Week. From time to time, various groups of the Parade of Nations will be performing at Sunset, so do watch the papers for announcements of these special programs.

'Theater Games' to return to White Oaks

The "L.A. Cabaret," which scored a hit with Peninsula audiences during its two performances June 19 and 20 will return for a repeat engagement later this year, according to Roger Grafstein, special events coordinator for Subud, the group which sponsored its appearance at the White Oaks Theatre in Carmel Valley.

The improvisational group impressed the audiences with its "Theater Games," during which the audience witnessed and participated in the creation of scenes. The structured improvisations by Lewis Arquette, Richmond Shepard, Carol O'Leary, Weston Gavin and Nola Roeper followed a set of rules, and much of the fun for the viewers was watching the rules followed (or broken).

Shepard, who is founder and lead actor of the company, is also widely known for his skill as a mime. He formed America's first mime troupe in 1952, and has worked with Marcel Marceau. His mime troupe is scheduled to appear at the White Oaks Theatre July 31-August 1.

All performances will benefit Subud California, a non-profit spiritual brotherhood.

PG & E manager retires

Douglas S. Aiken of Pebble Beach retired as sales manager of Pacific Gas and Electric Company's Coast Valleys Division July 1, climaxing an active 39-year career crammed with activity and service, both for PG&E and the various communities in which he has worked.

W.L. (Bill) Murray, division manager, announced Aiken's retirement and said his successor will be appointed shortly. Aiken has served in his present position since 1963, responsible for energy sales and commercial operations in Monterey, San Benito and San Luis Obispo and northern Santa Barbara Counties.

Aiken started with PG&E in 1931 as a domestic gas heating salesman in San Francisco following a distinguished collegiate career at Stanford University. He was successively sales or commercial manager in divisions headquartered at Red Bluff, San Jose, and Oakland before coming to the Coast Valleys Division at Salinas.

During the past seven years Aiken and his wife Mary Alice have resided in Pebble Beach, where they will continue to live. Besides enjoying golf, they plan to travel in the United States and abroad.

CARMEL SANITARY DISTRICT
NOTICE OF
SPECIAL BOND ELECTION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to the qualified electors of Carmel Sanitary District (the "District"), Monterey County, California, that in accordance with the provisions of the Health and Safety Code of the State of California governing such elections, a special bond election has been called to be held and the same will be held at the places hereinafter designated in the District on

TUESDAY, August 4, 1970

from the hour of seven (7) o'clock A.M. of said day until the hour of seven (7) o'clock P.M. of said day, during which period of time the polls will be kept continuously open, at which time and places there will be submitted to the qualified electors resident within the District the question whether or not the bonds of the District shall be issued in the amount and for the objects and purposes set forth in the following proposition, to wit:

PROPOSITION:

"Shall the Carmel Sanitary District, Monterey County, California, incur a bonded indebtedness of TWO MILLION FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS ($2,400,000) lawful money of the United States, for the acquisition, construction and completion of improvements including additions, enlargements and modifications of facilities for sewage treatment and disposal, outfall structures, sewage pumping works, force mains and collector, interceptor and trunk sewer mains, together with the performing of all work auxiliary thereto necessary to complete same, and the acquisition of all lands and easements necessary therefor, and including any or all expenses incidental thereto or connected therewith?"

The question of issuing bonds to make all of said foregoing outlays shall be submitted to the voters as one proposal.

The said bonds shall be $2,400,000.00 in principal amount and will bear interest at the rate of not to exceed seven (7) per cent per annum, payable semiannually, or annually the first year and semiannually thereafter; shall be of the form and character known as serial bonds; shall run for a period not to exceed forty (40) successive years; and shall be sold in such manner as may be determined by the Board, but at not less than ninety-five (95) per cent of the par value thereof.

The said election is to be conducted as nearly as practicable in accordance with the general laws of the State of California.

For the purpose of holding and conducting said election, eight (8) election precincts are hereby established, consisting of a consolidation of such portions of State and County precincts, as last established by the Board of Supervisors of Monterey County for the conduct of State and County elections, as are within the boundaries of the Carmel Sanitary District, Monterey County, California, but shall not include any territory within any of said State and County precincts which is without said District boundaries. The precinct designation, the polling place designated therefor and the election officers to conduct said election are as set forth in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and incorporated herein by reference.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we have hereunto set our hands on June 16, 1970.

WE'RE PRIVILEGED AND PROUD to offer this PRIME CARMEL POINT property ... first time on the market. The owners had their choice of MANY Scenic Drive sites when they built their retirement home, and they chose this special one for its expansive views of the ocean with waves breaking on the rocks, a not-too-close view of the Carmel beach with its curving shoreline, the Pebble Beach golf greens and Cypress Point. Custom-built for ideal relaxed living, the residence features a view from the large living room and separate dining room (both with wood paneling), the two bedrooms (both accommodate twin beds), and compact kitchen. The sunny protected patio is accessible from living room and kitchen ... ideal for breakfast and lunch. There is storage area for two cars; the grounds require minimum care. Attractive roof lines are combined with redwood exterior. Hardwood floors, central heating and ample closet areas. EXCELLENT MARKET VALUE at $79,950. Exclusively listed.

PEBBLE BEACH BUY It's smart. It's charming. It's a wonderful home for entertaining with its spacious party room plus warm formal living room. And it's the best buy we've seen in years in this choice location facing the world famous fairways just an easy walk to the Lodge. Two bedrooms, 3 baths, a den or library and a separate Guest House. A pleasure to show. $135,000.

ATTRACTIVE "TOWN HOUSE" nestled in the oaks on a sleepy cul-de-sac yet very close to town. Two bedrooms, two baths plus a studio room, sunken living room with raised-hearth fireplace. Almost new. $49,500.

CARMEL POINT LOT A sunny, level site with lagoon view. An excellent buy at $20,000 and liberal financing is available.

A DRAMATIC 37' LIVING ROOM is featured in this contemporary 3-bedroom, 2-bath Carmel Knolls Drive home. The centrally located kitchen is finished in teakwood and opens onto a large sunny walled patio. Situated on a very private half acre lot, this house is an exceptional "buy" at $47,000. Exclusive.

2 BEDROOMS ON SCENIC DRIVE -- $58,500
With a clear view of the beach, Carmel Bay and Pebble Beach. Not an old shack, as you'd expect at this (relatively) low, low price, but a charming, sound cottage with beamed-ceiling living room, small dining room, central heat, shake roof, protected patio facing south, and a detached studio room that absolutely defies description.

2-BEDROOM VIEW HOME, LARGE LOT, $59,500
In Rancho Rio Vista, there's a super-value home. Large living room, dining ell, breakfast nook, huge master bedroom, family room, workshop, store room, protected patio, all on a 1-acre corner lot, and the house is in really good shape, too. Shown by appointment.

CARMEL DUPLEX -- CHOICE AREA -- $62,500
Would you like to own an attractive duplex in Carmel? Here is your opportunity, just 2 blocks from the beach and south of Ocean Ave. Each unit has 2 bedrooms, 1 bath, living room, kitchen, fireplace, and they are in excellent condition. Both are leased into 1972. See us for further details.

LUXURIOUS, OCEAN-VIEW 4-BEDROOM ADOBE
This is one of those immaculate, well-planned, beautifully built homes that only rarely comes on the market. It has everything a discriminating buyer can demand, including automatic garage door opener, garden sprinkler system, and sewing room. 3 baths and a den. It is situated at the end of a cul-de-sac and is landscaped for maximum privacy. An exclusive offering at $98,750.

Pebble Beach - M.P.C.C.:
A Magical Environment

THE ADVANTAGE OF SAFE SECLUSION PROVIDED WITHIN THE DEL MONTE FOREST GATES IS TREMENDOUS; SO IS THE ACCESSIBILITY OF GOLF AND OTHER COUNTRY CLUB PLEASURES. BUT THE REALLY RARE JOY AFFORDED THOSE WHO LIVE IN THE FOREST IS THE ENVIRONMENT -- GROWING HARDER TO FIND EVERY DAY IN POPULOUS CALIFORNIA -- WHERE YOU AND YOUR CHILDREN CAN SAFELY RIDE HORSEBACK OR JUST WANDER HAPPILY ALONG ON FOOT THROUGH LOVELY NATURAL FORESTS AND ALONG THE SEASHORE.

We Have a Handsome, Year-Old Home with all the many conveniences of the brand new, but none of the work, for the landscaping is already done. 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, stucco with a shake roof -- a charming informal home for just $57,500.

Near The Del Monte Lodge
A truly beautiful stone two-story home, lovingly restored to mint condition (including a $10,000 new kitchen for gourmets) on an acre of your own forest for just $169,500.

Old Spanish For A Large Family
Three master suites or 6 bedrooms, 5½ baths, an apartment. On the 13th Tee of the Shore Course, with magnificent ocean views from nearly every room. $135,000.

Or Build Your Own Home On A Choice Site
Even the street names are pleasant! SUNRIDGE RD., with a high-up view of the world for only $15,000. CAYUSE, a level ocean view lot in finest MPCC area for $18,500. LOS ALTOS DRIVE, a quarter acre with ocean view from Pt. Joe to Santa Cruz for only $15,000. HERMITAGE ROAD, cart distance to the Club, a secluded knoll for $14,000. SEA GULL ROAD, fine corner lot for only $14,500. In the estates area near Cypress Point on PORTOLA ROAD, a choice lot for $32,500.

Elegant Small Home with Large Rooms -
Overlooking the sporty Par-3 hole and the 7th green of the Dunes Course in Monterey Peninsula Country Club the perfect small home: Only 6 years old, its approx. 2000 sq. ft. afford two very large bedrooms, two beautiful baths, family room, formal living room, bar, built-in buffet, and there's a huge garage with a storage wall and a cart room. Beautiful garden, lovely patios, brick planter beds. Very close to the club house. Play a few holes of an evening, or just watch the 3 putters and the occasional hole-in-one, and check up on who "forgets" to rake the traps. Located on a quiet street with an eastern exposure. Present owners loved it for a weekender but it's too snall for their family of three children now that they are ready to live here permanently. Price $59,750.
